Editor's Note

November, an entire month to express gratitude and content. This month marks the beginning of the end of the fall semester. For some of you it means being closer to graduation, for some others it means finishing your first semester in graduate studies. Congratulations either way!

We, the faculty, are grateful to have you in the program. Through your participation, eagerness to learn, talents, kindness, and brilliance, you enrich the classes and the program.

Let us take a moment to count our blessings and to prepare for a successful end of the semester. Please remember to be kind to one another and to ask for help when you need it.

Gratitude turns what we have into enough. - Anonymous

Sincerely,
 Dr. Larrotta

Student Highlights

Workplace, Community, and Continuing Education

Omayma Raafat

I greatly enjoyed my education at Texas State! First, I obtained a Bachelor's degree in Interior Design and I am now heading into my last semester for obtaining my Master's in Adult Education. I would love to combine my two passions of design and educating adults to teach architecture, art history or interior design.

English as a Second Language Concentration

Sarah Roark

I am a recent UCLA graduate, having earned a BA in Applied Linguistics. I came to Texas State to supplement that knowledge so that I may one day work with underserved populations of adults who are learning English. I plan to apply to the Peace Corps upon graduation.
