INTRODUCTION

What Will We Be Talking About Today?

- Studio Art (ARTS) Course Changes
- Updated BFA in Studio Art
- Next Steps / Q&A

Who Should Learn About These Changes?

- Studio Art (ARTS) Course Changes
 - Affects anyone who has ARTS courses in their degree plan
- Updated BFA in Studio Art
 - Affects students currently pursuing a BFA in Studio Art who choose to switch to the updated degree plan

Who is NOT Affected By These Changes?

- Everything discussed today does not impact:
 - Anyone graduating this spring or summer
- The updated BFA in Studio Art does not impact:
 - Students pursuing EC-12 Teacher Certification in Art
 - Students pursuing a Minor in Art or BA in Art
 - Students pursuing a BFA in Photography or BFA in Communication Design

INTRODUCTION

Why Change?

These changes are designed to streamline coursework for all students, and offer additional flexibility within the BFA in Studio Art degree plan.

These changes are designed to work with current students' existing degree plans, and will not increase a students' time to graduation.

Updated BFA in Studio Art

UPDATED BFA IN STUDIO ART

What's Changing?

In fall 2024, the BFA in Studio Art will be updated to facilitate interdisciplinary study and a flexible degree plan.

Students who are currently pursuing a BFA in Studio Art have the option to switch to the updated program if they decide it is the right fit. Current students will not be required to switch to this updated program, and can stay on their current degree plan for the duration of their studies.

How is the Updated BFA in Studio Art Different?

CONCENTRATIONS

Currently, students declare an official concentration in one of the following areas: Ceramics, Drawing, Expanded Media, Metals, Painting, Printmaking, or Sculpture.

In the updated BFA in Studio Art, students do not declare a concentration (area of specialization) as part of their degree.

How is the Updated BFA in Studio Art Different?

COURSE LEVELS

Course levels within each area of study will be reduced from seven to three.

This change contributes to greater flexibility within the program by creating space in the degree plan for coursework in other studio art areas, if desired.

The areas of study themselves are not changing.

How is the Updated BFA in Studio Art Different?

THE FINAL YEAR

In the current program, students take four required courses in their senior year: Professional Practice and Thesis I, and Senior Exhibition and Thesis II.

In the updated program, students take Professional Practice in the semester prior to taking Senior Exhibition, Thesis, and a final advanced studio class. There is only one thesis course in the updated program.

Deciding if the Updated BFA is Right For You

MEET WITH AN ADVISOR

An advisor will go over your progress so far, and will show you what effect the updated BFA in Studio Art would have on your remaining coursework and time to graduation.

You can then decide whether to stay in your current degree plan, or make the switch to the updated BFA.
