Experiences in Mass Communication

The mass communication program develops foundations in media and communication principles, critical thinking, and adaptability. Students develop research methods and analysis skills that can be applied to different fields, including law, academia, and the professional sector. Coursework also covers strategic communication within behavioral and psychological contexts. Students may participate in faculty-led study abroad or Study in America trips, learn with peers in Living and Learning Communities, develop a professional community at networking events, compete in student competitions, or join student organizations for a well-rounded experience. This undergraduate program is accredited by the Accrediting Council on education in journalism and mass communications. An optional concentration in sports media is available.
